The Quetta sank three minutes. after striking. he following statements by passengers give some idea of what followed:-William Gregory, a passenger, says he was on the upper deck when the vessel struck. I be impact did not stop or jerk, the vessel much, but the seemed to rip her way through the rock. He remained on the vessel until the very last. He was getting right astern when he was forced to jump overboard. The vessel in going down ansad a good deal of suction, with which he was tragged down. Eventually he came across a bast upside down with nine or ten persons chaging to her, being unable to mil her out, as sho was much damaged. They then made for land, picking up the capain and pilot curoute. A good deal of wreckage was floating about; also pooltry and sheep. cries of the women when the vessel was sinking were heart-rending. THE AMERICAN MAIL

The P. M. steamer China, with the American mail of the 11th March, arrived here yesterday. The following telegrams are taken from San Francisco papers :---NEW PLAN OF LORD RANDOLPH CHURCHIEL.

NEW YORK, 1st March. The Tribune's special from London says: Lord Randolph Churchill has marched over ino the temperance camp, bag and baggage. Sir Wilfred Lawson and Mr. Caine hall him as something more than a reornit, or an ally-they accept him as a leader. He has prepared a bill, of which both these eminent experts say that no better temperance bill was ever presented in the not a single word about compensation: "If." said Mr. Caine. "I could see that bill a law to morrow, I would not ask for a single. word to be altered." But Lord Randolph's attitude on this and other social questions has broughtdown on his head some of the heaviest l'ory thunder. He is once more reminded in an article that has every mark of inspiration how far he has wandered from the true fold, how the confidence of the party and the public is shaken. and how remote are his chances of returning to office by the path he is now pursuing. Lord Randelph minds all this as little as over. He is bent on right-hour legislation and other. social legislation besides temperance, and is convinced that social questions are uppermost; as probably they are. He expects once more to take the lead of his party, whether in or out of office, he bares little: What he cares for is to
